

A 3D architectural rendering of a large cathedral complex, shown from an elevated perspective. The main building is a large, dark grey structure with a prominent central dome and two tall, slender towers with smaller domes. The complex is surrounded by various other buildings, some with gabled roofs and others with flat roofs. In the foreground, there are several smaller structures, including a small square building with a central spire and a larger, more complex building with multiple levels and a pointed roof. An orange arrow points to a small, dark grey structure at the base of the main building, which is highlighted by a black rectangular box containing the text "Westeingang Kathedrale".
